HISTORY

The settlers arrived at the foot of our now F Street, September 16, 1850. They camped under the oaks intents, and planned their homes. Five houses were built in the first fall and winter. The most westerly was Captain Kimball's at the now Third and F Streets, southeast corner; the others extended eastward to about the intersection of Sixth and A Streets of today. Captain Kimball later had the town laid out in blocks. He purchased much of the early town site, giving some lots to organizations and selling other lots and blocks to individuals. The settlers planted for a harvest in 1850 only to be struck by one of the worst droughts ever recorded in California. They were forced to move to the Kirker Pass area where they could cut the wild oat grass and take it by scow to San Francisco, receiving sixty dollars per ton. This brought much needed supplies to help hold them over until a harvest in 1852. Some of the original Antioch settlers stayed around Kirker Pass, but most of them returned to their homes in Antioch.

On July 5, 1851, they held a picnic at Reverend Smith's home on a bluff overlooking the river. It was on this occasion that the thirty or forty people chose the name of Antioch, after Antioch of Syria, in memory of Reverend Joseph Smith, brother of W.W. Smith, who had died in this area in February 1850. From 1850 to 1880 the river was the only means of transportation and communication with the outside world. Antioch boasted three miles of frontage with 40-foot deep water three quarters of a mile wide to accommodate shipping. The town limits were the San Joaquin at low tide on the north, A Street to the east, Tenth Street to the South and O Street to the west. This was fined until people started moving south of Tenth street around 1900, assuming they were still in Antioch. The boundaries were finally changed in the 1930's when it was brought to the attention of the City Council that the original boundaries had never been changed and recorded in the county records. A number of early industries and business enterprises were established in Antioch from time to time. Brick kilns, coal mining, a copper smelter, several potteries and a distillery were built. In 1889 a paper mill was built on the west side of L street, north of Fourth Street.

As in any new community, some of the business ventures thrived, others flared but soon died out. With incorporation in February 1872, the town began to develop in a more orderly fashion. The organization of the fire and police departments gave the people a feeling of safety, with more time to devote to the nurturing of a healthy, growing community.

SIGHTSEEING

Bay Area Ridge Trails:

5 miles long, from First Street on Benicia waterfront to Benicia State Recreation area. Connects with Benicia Ridge Trail, which runs 5 miles from Rose Drive near state park entrance through woodlands to Blue Rock Springs Park in Vallejo.

Contra Costa Canal:

12 mile hiking trail that winds mostly through central county. It has a pathway for hiking, bicycling, and horseback riding. Trail begins at Hidden Lakes Drive and Center Avenue in Martinez, follows canal south before turning east through Walnut Creek and Concord.

Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve:

The East Bay Regional Park District began acquiring land for Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve in the early 1970s. Today, most of the mining district is within the Preserve's nearly 6,286 acres. The area is an ideal location for hiking, picnicking and nature study. Naturalists conduct a variety of programs relating the Preserve's natural and historic resources. The Preserve's 47 miles of trails traverse areas of grassland, foothill woodland, mixed evergreen forest, chaparral, stream vegetation and exotic plantings. Notable among the latter are several tree species introduced by the coal miners. These include the black locust, pepper tree, almond, eucalyptus and tree of heaven.

Black Diamond is noted as the northernmost location of Coulter pine, black sage, desert olive and dudleya. In addition, several species that are restricted to the Mt. Diablo area occur here, including the Mt. Diablo globe lily, Mt. Diablo helianthella and Mt. Diablo manzanita. In the springtime, the hills are covered with some of the most remarkable wildflower displays in the Bay Area. Black Diamond supports a healthy wildlife population, and it is not uncommon for the observant hiker to see the tracks of raccoons, skunks, opossums, rabbits and deer. Mountain lions, bobcats, foxes and coyotes are occasionally spotted, while birds of prey soar overhead. Over 100 species of birds have been seen, from the rare golden eagle to the ever-present meadowlark. The side-blotched lizard has its northern limit in the Preserve, and two rare animal species have been found here--the white-tailed kite and the Alameda whipsnake.

Black Diamond is located in Contra Costa County, south of Pittsburg and Antioch. Take Highway 4 to the Somersville Road exit in Antioch, then drive south (toward the hills) on Somersville Road to the Preserve entrance. 5175 Somersville Rd, Antioch, CA. For information phone (925) 757-2620.
